Courageous Generosity

The attitude that confronts adversity with a spirit of liberality and openhanded generosity in unselfish and faith-filled giving, flowing from a willing heart and magnanimous spirit that inspires others to give with equal courage.

2 Corinthians 8:2

Fierce troubles came down on the people of those churches, pushing them to the very limit. The trial exposed their true colors: They were incredibly happy, though desperately poor. The pressure triggered something totally unexpected: an outpouring of pure and generous gifts.

Our Motivation

We are motivated to practice radical generosity because God has freely given us all things and our response is faith-filled, openhanded generosity!

SERMON SUMMARY

Seven Motivations for Generous Giving

Courageous generosity is the lifestyle of those who live like Jesus and share His love. This is our heart and our faith. We believe for the same grace that was on the Macedonian churches, a grace of liberality.

Giving is a Kingdom principle that releases abundance and prosperity into the lives of people, businesses, and churches. Some people are not aware of their own battles with believing for abundance so they can be generous — battles of old habits, wrong thinking, the attack of the devil, and spiritual power working against them.

Giving is the alternative to spending or hoarding that breaks the back of materialism. The act of giving is a reminder that it's all about God, not about us.
